SIMULATION CENTRE

INNOVATION IN HEALTHCARE EDUCATION

Queen's University Belfast has a long history of training healthcare professionals, each of whom over the course of their career will care for thousands of patients in Northern Ireland and beyond.

Today's students need to be equipped with the skills to enable them to continue to provide excellence in patient care in increasingly complex and changing clinical environments.

The Queen's Simulation Centre will be one of the few in the UK to truly champion simulation based education with an interprofessional approach.

Medical, Nursing and Midwifery, Dentistry and Pharmacy students will train together in interactive scenarios that closely replicate the clinical setting. This will build on the University's experience and expertise to transform training and ultimately enhance the effectiveness and safety of patient care.

Your support will increase the Centre's capacity to train the best students to be the best healthcare professionals of the future.

“ Simulation based learning gives students the opportunity to rehearse and advance their skills and expertise, without risk, before transferring them to clinical practice”.
